Builders' Day is a career exploration event unlike any other. You'll have the chance to hear from professionals working in various construction roles. You will meet architects, engineers, project managers, and craft workers. You'll learn about the day-to-day tasks they perform, the education and training required for their jobs, and the rewards and challenges of working in their fields.

In addition to exploring the different career paths available to you as a future builder, you'll also have the opportunity to participate in hands-on activities and demonstrations.
